WE reprint from the N. C. Daily News the translation of a somewhat amusing document. which has been circulated in Chinese, with reference to the Audience of the Foreign Ministers. It seems to be the effusion of some comically minded Chinese, who wished to make a skit upon what appeared to him the a matter of grave political importance. On alarm was practice. this occasion, however, we think the Daily News has departed from its usual discrimination in respect to Chinese affairs, and has been tempted to verify its prophecy concerning the evils which must result from the Audience not being properly notified in the Pekin Gazette, upon very slender grounds. A Chinaman who should judge of the exact state of political feeling at home by a skit in Punch, or, to come nearer home, who should form his estimate of the sentiments of foreigners towards the inhabitants of the Celestial Empire by the lively effusions in Puck. would probably scarcely be wider of the mark than our contemporary is in its estimate of bowever, for on the fall of the tenth wicket the ridiculous skit which has been circulated in Chinese at Shanghai. If it were designed tering, the drift of which no Chinaman could ling one leg bit for 7. The junings closed at 12 fail to perceive. Prince Kung breaking his cup into ten thousand pieces, and the Foreign-Ministers being completely unable to approach the awful presence of the Emperor, are pieces of exaggeration which would be Private Ellis, and Capt. Cole were disposed of too inuch for any Celestial to take literally. It is also not very surprising that a joke of this kind should have been perpetrated, con- appointment. Privates Newton and Else made sidering the fussy importance which foreign- Newton did not last long, Private Else, well ers have attached to every detail connected supported by Lieut. Rich, afforded the spectawith the audience, and the obviousness, great a tendency to attach importance to manner. He was finally caught in the long documents of this kind among the Chinese; field by Mr. Greig in fine style-having scored and that excepting where they are of an un 57, consisting of one 6, one 5, two 4's, six 3's, doubtedly inflammatory character such as the he was badly missed at slip, when he had "Douth Blow to Corrupt Doctrine," and certain prodlamations which have at times appeared making direct charges against foreign- Messrs. Handley and Woollatt at the wickets, is given to them. JOHN CHINAMAN, as well as John Bull, likes his joke, and if he sees an a good piece of chaff, is as likely to do so as Mr. Punch is to have a laugh at Frenchmen about frogs, or Germans about Sauerkraut and long pipes. But fortunately these barmless little bits of banter do not result in anything more serious than a return fire in the comic papers of the people, who are milde the subjects of the jocularities, and are not taken as evidence of intense international hatred. It foreigners looked upon such matters among themselves with the same seriousness as they regard them among the Chinese, there would be nothing but perpet thal wagfare.

We do not, of course, in any way deny the importance of the omission to publish a pro per account of the Audience in the Peking Gazette, as this is obvious enough on its own basis; but if the only harm of the omission was the absurd effusion which has recently Private Bunday, 80th, not out. I absent. been published in Shanghai, there would scarcely be much reason to regret it. In one point of view the skit will tend to do good rather than harm. However absurd it represents the Audience of foreign Ministers Mr. Handley, ran out. by the Emperor to have been, it admits the fact that such an Audience was granted, and Mr. Starkey, e Master, b Else., 2 c Master, b Else., to some extent accomplishes the very object which the notification in the Pelsing Gazette Mr. Symonds, c Else, b Newton. O not out...... would have accomplished. We may be certain that the Chinese, judging by their lights, would not look upon the Audience, if only the bare fact of it had been stated otherwise, than as a somewhat peculiar and rather comical affair; and the skit in question might just as well have been written after the fact had been officially notified, as without its - being published. In fact, it would have been . all the more telling if the Audience had been notified, just as those hits in Punch tell best which refer to some circumstance to which the attention of the public has been drawn y the serious prints. Without, therefore, in any way denving the importance of really virulent placards and pamphlets against foreigners in China, we cannot help thinking the present effusion is little more than a piece of harmiess playfulness, the best joke Mr. Greg. connected with which is the intense importance which a foreign paper has been induced to attach to it.

He next quoted from Brightley's Digest as to the punishment applicuble to the two offences, and with regard to including them under one indictment. (In unswer to a remark by the Court, Mr. Eames continued-) He would certainly not Kwong-wing-shing to travelling trader. have presented an indictment for forgery, if he did not believe there was good ground for it, but there were very great doubts whether it could be proved. In the second indictment, he had charged that the paper was false, not that it was forged, and that prisoner uttored a false instrument, knowing it to be false, -nowhere did be allege that prisoner uttered a forged instrument. The Court wished to ascertain what were the terms of imprisonment appropriate to uttering a false document and a forged one. It did not feel at liberty to drop a charge of forgery after baving it presented, unless it could see that the ends of justice would be carried out by the punishment attaching to the other offence.

The next proceeding was to band in might be awarded. It appeared that Mr. Stud. dard bad been in China for thirteen years, and had suffered from the effects of the climate, on account of which he had been advised to go away for a time. Besides, Mr. Stoddard begued him to say he was very sorry, for what he had done, and had no intention to defraud the Bank eventually. Like many people he always expected to be able to repay the money, and it was not as if he took it intending to deliberately defraud the Bank by going away; he stopped here fully intending and hoping to repay it, but unfortu-nately in his efforts to do so only got deeper and deeper into the mire. He (Counsei) would also like the Court to take into consideration Mr. Stoddard's conduct since the disclosure; he had not done us a man who planned a fraud would have done; be had remained on the spot, placed his property in the hands of his creditors, and done everything he could to assist in remedying his affairs. He had never shown any desire to evade justice; on his trip down to Amoy he no doubt must have thought much of the position he was in, and had ample opportunity of going away if he wished to do: · Counsel would ask the Court to take all this into consideration, in the hope that it might see fit to mitigate the severity of its sentence, so far as it could consistently with carrying out the law.
